New Immigration Act Being Enforced at Halifax, N.S.

Halifax, N.S., April 22.—A fair understanding of the effect the new Immigration Act may be expected to have, ultimately, upon the standard of citizenship of Canada, was to be had from the opportunity for observing the operation of the provisions of the new act which our recent week afforded.

During the week a total of approximately 4,500 immigrants arrived from the Old Country by the vessels which landed at Halifax, and as the effective provisions of the new act which passed the house just prior to the Easter recess are being enforced under order of council, excellent opportunity was afforded for exemplification of the influence which the government's new policy of selection and restriction as relates to the admission of immigrants, is destined to exert on the citizenship of the future.

As a large percentage of the citizens of Canada in the years to come will be people born in other countries than Canada, the effect, whether elevating or lowering, which the introduction of these people into Canada will have on the citizenship of Canada will be determined by the care exercised in choosing those who are permitted to become citizens.

Out of the present condition and the manner in which the new act is being enforced, the policy of selection of the desirable and restriction of the undesirable elements is evident. As an instance, for the accomplishment of the results desired, the money qualification provided for by the regulation under the act requiring that immigrants have in their possession on landing twenty-five dollars of their own money was waived. Its effectiveness was well illustrated by the experience of the Halifax immigration officials during the week which saw the first large bunch of immigrants this season.

Of the total number of passengers landed at Halifax during the week, considerably less than ten per cent. were Canadians returning from abroad. The rest, with the exception of a few who were en route to the United States, were applicants for original entrance into Canada. All were subjected to a careful scrutiny from the first class to the steerage, but the steerage passengers in particular, who are all classified as immigrants, and who numbered 3,500, were painstakingly examined as to their fitness for admission, physically, mentally, morally, financially, as well as in other respects, calculated to determine whether they were desirable or undesirable.

If the male immigrant was able to show he was going to settle on land or to secure employment on a farm, or if the female immigrant could satisfy the inspector she was going to assured employment as a domestic or to some relative who would provide for her in short, if it was clearly apparent the applicant for admission was desirable, was in no sense likely to become a public charge, and had sufficient money to reach his or her destination, the inspector conducting the examination did not stick at the money qualification. But let the applicant present any of the aspects of being undesirable as a citizen of Canada and it became necessary to meet the money

Serious Stabbing Affray

Vancouver, B.C., April 21.—As a result of a serious stabbing affray Conductor McKernan, of the sleeping car department of the C.P.R., lies in the general hospital in a serious condition, while O.M. Bryant, colored porter, also employed by the C.P.R., is accused of causing the wounds, and has been arrested by the local provincial police.

The wounded man was brought to the city this afternoon, and the physicians are now engaged in making a thorough examination of his injuries. Dr. Weid, who made the first examination, found a penetrating abdominal wound and a superficial wound near the throat. Bryant, who was brought back to the city on the same train, is of the mulatto type, of medium height and weight, and about forty years of age. He made no statement to the provincial police, and was later taken to New Westminster, where he will come up for preliminary hearing on the charge of wounding with intent.

The row appears to have occurred shortly after this morning's Revelstoke train left the city, and seems to have the stabbing since near Port Haney. A pocket knife is said to have been the instrument used.

qualification to the last cent, or rejection resulted.

THE BENEFICIAL EFFECTS

The beneficial effects of the rigid enforcement of the new act is apparent in the great improvement in the class of immigrants now coming. Knowledge that an immigrant will be sent back if he does not come up to the mark is apparently having its effect on the steamship companies and other agencies interested in European immigration, for instead of a horde of distinctly undesirable seeking to land, as formerly, the week saw but few even among the arrivals who were even regarded as questionable. As a whole they were a fine lot of people, people with fine faces, full of character, fine physiques and obviously filled with optimism and enthusiastic ambition to get out and make good in their new country. In consequence the immigration officials had little difficulty in dealing with them and passed them with extraordinary rapidity.

Out of the whole 4,500, but twenty-four were detained by the examining inspector for further examination and of those but seven were subsequently ordered deported.

As showing that there is no discrimination as regards nationality, it may be mentioned that three of the seven ordered deported, were english, who failed to meet the requirements of the act. One was an Englishman who, though apparently desirable in every other respect, was absolutely without funds and as he could not show he was going to work on a farm and had no friends, relatives or prospects, he was detained and will be sent back. Another was a youth of English parentage who was mentally deficient. A third was an Englishman who developed an motor ataxia on the ship. He was amply supplied with funds, but he had left his family in England and had no friends or relatives in this country. It was plain there was a strong probability he would sooner or later become a public charge and it was not difficult to convince him he would be much better off at home.

Alaskans Invest

In Forty Sections of Alberta Farm Lands Near Pass

From the Calgary Herald

During the past few weeks Calgary has been invaded by numerous parties of former Alaskan miners. They are Americans from the other side who went to Alaska in the early days and made good. Jim Macleod, a well-known Alaskan miner, recently of Spokane, arrived here from the south a few days ago, and is staying at Blomart's lodge.

Mr. Macleod expects to go west in the course of a few days. Messrs J. Perky and John Berger, of Seattle, have been here for nearly a week purchasing farm lands. They also have a number of American friends with them. Mr. Perky is the head of the firm of Perky & Co., of Seattle, and formerly of Alaska.

John Berger was the man who organized the dog train races in Alaska. In 1900 at such a race held in Dawson City, he wagered $40,000 that his team could beat any other team in the country and give a handout of 400 yards and beat them out a half mile in a six mile race. He won the money.

These gentlemen, together with others in the party have recently purchased thirty sections of land near Blairmore and north of the Red Deer river. They have a dozen steam plows working on their land and are just completing arrangements for other farm machinery and implements. The object of these investors is to specialize in wheat. Messrs Perky and Berger left this morning for British Columbia to look after mining interests there. They will be back here in a few days.

When a hello girl hears someone say over the phone, "Hello, birdie, how's rats?" she must not think someone is just trying to josh her. It may be a proposal. From Seattle comes the statement that one of the telephone ladies in that rapid city has just captured—or should I say captivated—a rich husband as the result of such joshing over the phone. He must have been a valorous swain to fall in love with a voice. Which all reminds me of a story written some years ago by an Irish friend of mine. This yarn had for its hero a young man who spent most of his time at the window of his room looking at a pretty damsel across the street at a similar window. In course of events he got so deeply in love with the lady that he begged for an interview. At last, after many coy delays, he engineered the desired meeting—against the will of the girl. But alas! and alack for the happy ending of the story, the lady had a wooden leg. And so they did not live happily ever after, for our lovesick young man was in the timber business himself. There is no moral to this, nor yet do I mean to insinuate that the phone girls are afflicted with wooden legs as a side issue. Nor wooden heads either. No, sir!—Ex.

National Battlefields

Sir George Garneau, chairman of the national battlefields commission, has given out an important statement in connection with the work of the commission, and with the constitution of its funds.

The commission has opened its offices in the former office of the provincial archives on Cook street and as required by law makes full returns of its work twice a year to the government. In council without whose previous consent the commission can incur no public expenditure whatever.

Incidentally, the commission was entrusted with the carrying out of the tercentenary celebration, and was authorized to expend a sum not exceeding $300,000, voted for the purpose by the parliament of Canada. This expenditure was well within the amount in question being about $250,000, as shown by the auditor general's report.

There has been some delay in commencing active operations because of a flaw in the act naming the commission which is being remedied by legislation at the present session, providing the necessary procedure in appropriation before the exchequer court. Until this is law, it is not deemed wise to either commence work or yet to definitely adopt plans in case of exorbitant demands for property required by such plans, which may have to be modified.

Strikers Return To Work

Philadelphia, April 22.—The strike of motormen and conductors of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company became a memory today when, with all misunderstanding regarding the terms of settlement removed, the strikers returned to work in obedience to an order issued last night by the executive committee of the carmen's union.

NOT WHAT HE EXPECTED.

Poor Student at Oxford Had Eyes Opened Regarding the "Hobs."

The son of a poor English workingman recently worked his way into and through Oxford and learned while doing it some things which surprised him greatly. He was almost thirty before he got there, but he had earned the money with painful abstinence and teaching at the usual pittance paid minor teachers in England.

At first the traditional cat in a strange garb was cosy and comfortable compared with him. He was embarrassed by having servants wait on him. He was also much depressed by the wasteful extravagance of having silver forks and spoons. And a clean napkin every night! Also he was not at home with a four or five course dinner. But he must have been game and better. For, as he tells his story in an English paper, one reads between the lines that he was evidently made up for the shortage that had existed in other things.

He has been amused, astonished, even provoked, "he writes, "to find that in my own college were men who were not only of high and approaching me with the diffidence I could not have felt toward them; merely because I was supposed to be a real live workman who had seen life. I had struggled up to Oxford just as the story book young man does."

"One modest youth, expressing to a friend of mine his desire to know me, said: 'But I don't suppose he'll care to talk to me. I'm so ignorant of things.'"

This before long he was actually being sought as the man who knew a good deal at first hand of social problems and the life of the poor. At debating societies I was soon embarrassingly in request, for a characteristic of Oxford to-day is the extraordinary interest taken in all sorts of social questions—unemployment, poverty, housing, education, the right to work, slum life, conditions of labor, sweated industries.

"Such subjects have occupied a very large proportion of the time of the students at the Union and at the various college societies. It was this keen interest in social reform which showed me my greatest misconception with regard to the 'upper classes,' who most loyal members of the proletariat, I had preached of the indifference, the indifference of the rich to the sufferings of the poor. I had honestly believed that the rich were responsible for the evils of poverty and unemployment, rack renting and sweated labor. But now that I was thrown among these ravening beasts like a slave among wolves for their delectation, I found that quite a large number of these wolves were watchdogs."

Must Hang at 62.

Sentence of death was passed by Justice Grantham at Monmouth, as a few days ago a Wm. B. Miller, aged 62 years, for the murder of a woman, was hanged at the gallows, at Bassalee, near Newport, on the night of Nov. 11. The couple were married in the bed with a hammer counsel suggested.

Amid breathless attention, Rudd Thompson, county clerk, by means of the actual window from the cottage of the victims, showed how a cut in the coat worn by the murderer might have been caused in breaking the window in order to effect an entrance. Mr. Thompson, wearing the coat, struck at the imaginary head of a victim in order to show how bloodstains came to be on the coat. He tried in what position it was possible to strike a blow at a point where the head of the murdered man was supposed to be, and using a policeman's sword as a weapon, raised his right arm in such a manner as to account for the bloodstains on the underside of the sleeve.

The only unconcerned person in court during Mr. Thompson's vivid trial was the prisoner, who yawned as if bored.

It was twenty minutes to nine before the judge began to read the jury returned a verdict of guilty, and the sentence was passed. But he fought violently with the warders in the dock.

Painting "Smoke" on Meat.

A new and novel method of smoking meat (with a paint brush) is in use in England—possibly in this country as well. "Smoke essence" and a brush do the trick in no time, and a beautifully smoked ham is the result. The essence is apparently put up in cans, like any other paint, and consists of a mixture of creosote, salicylic acid and iron. Anything can be "smoked" with it—fish, ham, tongue, bacon—and it is said to be harmless, and the resulting product indistinguishable from the real thing. Sophistication being the order of the day, all the consumer can ask is that he should be poisoned. With the possible exception of the aniline dye "smoke essence" seems a harmless fraud.

A Parliamentary Stocking Knitter.

Mr. Calvert, Warden, of the P. P. to be elected, who was returned for the Orkney and Shetland Islands, is undoubtedly the only member of the House who ever beguiled the tedium of waiting for divisions by knitting stockings. Mr. Wain's comments are great-knitters of the woolen-hose. He may have learned purely from motive of diplomacy at the time, but he has declared the same. One day he was at the home of a patient, and the physician, says the Newcastle Banner, abruptly asked Dr. Emerson:

"If you could reach the Rainbow."

Many improbable and impossible things would happen if you could only get in reach of the rainbow. The little Turk is told that he should have a silver head, with gold teeth and ruby eyes, he has but to touch the orange stripe. In Greece they say that the person so unfortunate as to stumble over the end of the bow will have his or hers so immediately changed.

SAVING ANTISEPTIC SHAVING

Not only is Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, unrivalled for preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin and hair, but it is a luxury for shampooing, bathing and especially for shaving. It now saves in modern form the medicinal, emollient, sanative and antiseptic properties of Cuticura Ointment, while supplying a firm, moist, non-drying, creamy and fragrant lather. After shaving, and before bathing, use Cuticura gently on the shaven parts with a bit of Cuticura Ointment. This method renders frequent shaving a pleasure and recommends itself to men with tender, easily irritated skins, and as a preventive of irritation and inflammation of the hair glands which, if neglected, often lead to obelinate and disfiguring eruptions.

HOW TO MAKE BABY SLEEP

The baby that cries all the night does not cry for nothing. It cries because it is not well, and has no other means of saying so. The chances are the trouble is due to some upsetting of the stomach or bowels which would be easily removed if the child were given a dose of Baby's Own Tablets. These Tablets make children sleep soundly and naturally because they remove the cause of the crying and restore the system to a pleasing to children and a relief to worried mothers. Mrs. John Fickles, Bangor, N. B., says: "If anything kills my little one the first thing I give him is a dose of Baby's Own Tablets and he's soon well again." Sold by medicine-dealers or by mail at 25¢ each a box from The Baby's Own Tablets Co., Brockville, Ont.

Getting We'll Pups

Four speakers, the well-known Indian trapper, recently brought from the Grand Forks country a female wolf and nine unborn pups for which he expected to receive from D. McGregor a bounty of $225. On having it explained to him that pups were not pups until they were born, took the fifty which was coming to him and he was once again set down. This time he had a female and seven pups, but the latter could not have been more than a minute, a minute and a half or two minutes old, when Four Speakers got them. That $225 should keep all the little Four Speakers in luxury for some time. Medicine Hat News.

A twelve-year-old boy had reigned supreme over parents and household all through his dozen years was surprised one morning to hear the cry of a little baby brother.

FELL ON THE STOVE

THE YOUNGER daughter of Mr. T. S. Douglas, of the Victoria, Winnipeg, was arranging some of her doll's washing on a clothes rack, beside the stove, when she fell, and her head was thrown out to try and save herself, came in contact with the side of the hot stove. She sustained a serious burn, and her screams brought her mother quickly to the spot.

"I sent to the drugist for the best remedy he had for burns," she says, and he sent back a box of Zam-Buk. He said that there was nothing to equal it. I applied this, and it soothed the pain so quickly that the child laughed and forgot her tortures. I bound up the hand in Zam-Buk, and each day applied Zam-Buk frequently and liberally, until the burn was quite cured."

A little one was soon able to go on with her play and we had no trouble with her during the time the burn was healing. I would most recommend all mothers to keep Zam-Buk handy for emergencies of this kind. All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at fifty cents a box. Mark Twain's Death

Mark Twain's death will occasion a feeling of almost personal regret to hundreds of thousands of readers throughout the English speaking world. No writer of the present day is better known, few excite more popular appreciation and none is deserving of higher credit for the wholeness of his work. It is this latter quality in all that he has produced that entitles him to unqualified praise.

It is by his humorous writing that he will be remembered. In the strength and soundness of his middle life and while he had yet his place as an author to make secure he realized that and confined himself to what he could do well. And it was during those years that he turned out such excellent work as the Jumping Frog, The Innocents Abroad and a host of other things that deservedly caught the public fancy and will continue to hold it for generations to come. In later life and especially during the past ten years Mark Twain wandered beyond his proper literary boundaries and it must be admitted that he signally failed to add to his reputation. He did indeed in his hard-boiled common sense so desirable but so unbecoming in the popular estimation of the present day. But he was not able to eliminate vulgarly questions with which neither his experience or his knowledge fitted him to deal.

It is as a genial companion by the fireside chatting to one familiarly and entertainingly, placing life in its proper aspect and willing us from our worries that Mark Twain's good work is of its highest value and it will long continue to benefit the world in this way. Mark Twain's individuality is made apparent in all that he has written with the pen that he handled best. He was a frank and honest nature, brave and gentle. He proved this during the years when misfortune oppressed him and his way was dark. He acted then as one would have expected him to act judging him by his best work.

It is impossible for his discriminating admirers not to feel some satisfaction that in later years he was in a position to amuse himself with subjects on which his opinion was of no value whatever. He had previously done sufficient for the world to claim such a privilege and if it pleased him so to occupy his declining years it harmed no one. Mark Twain was a good friend of mankind and all the more so that in all the seventy-five years of his life he accepted with equal spirit the sunshine and the shadow making the most of what either brought. A great English poet, lately dead, paid a tribute to a personal friend once in some delightful verses which might not inappropriately be applied by the public to Mark Twain. They are:

Not a kinder life or sweeter,

Farewell! Farewell!

As was previously announced, the ladies and gentlemen connected with the Baptist congregation had been engaged during the past few days in preparation of a farewell party in honor of Rev. J. and Mrs. Sargeant, who are about to depart from Blaimore. Mrs. Kidd very kindly offered her boarding house to the promoters of the event and also provided a sumptuous supper, which took place last night, attended by a whole host of friends of the guests. Two large tables were bountifully spread and surrounded by merry chat, while full justice was done the many nice things so temptingly displayed. After supper came the usual formal address and presentation. Mr. J. W. Gresham rose to the event and in words of hope and eulogy as well as of expression of regret at their guests' departure, voiced the sentiment of the congregation and friends both ably and to the point, and presented Mr. Sargeant with a cheque for $70 on behalf of the congregation.

In reply Mr. Sargeant briefly reviewed the many pleasures enjoyed by himself and family during the twenty-six months he has labored here, and the greater pleasure of knowing that his efforts had been crowned with success. Never before had he mingled with such kindly associations as he had had the pleasure of meeting here, and he expressed his sincere hope that all would endeavor to accord the incoming pastor similar treatment. In closing he expressed regret at having to sever these bands which have so long attached them to the hearts of the people here, but assured his hearers that Blaimore would ever remain a green spot in his memory and that though far away from them his prayers would ever follow his associations here.

A vote of thanks was accorded the promoters of the party, and also to the hostess for the grand table array and for her kindness in placing her house open for the event.

Next came the musical program. Mr. Morse rendered several beautiful songs, assisted by a number of vocalists. A recitation was well rendered by Miss Blanch Pinkney. Magical exercises and comic features of "Jock" McGhee were very entertaining and kept the gathering in roars of laughter. The closing item to the program was the singing of "God be with you 'till we meet again."

"The Enterprise" "Special" is coming into form and we hope to have it ready for circulation by May 5th. These booklets will contain about 36 pages, all profusely illustrated with half-tone cuts of the principal business establishments and business men and also illustrative of mining and other developments in Blaimore and neighboring towns. We are endeavoring to make this "special" an interesting volume, which should meet with the approval of all who take pride in the progressiveness of the Crow's Nest Pass.

Time that lights and quenches men
Now may quench or light again,
Mingling with the mystic metre.
Woes of all men's lives with his,
Not a kinder note than this
Not a kinder life or sweeter—

Dies of Broken Heart

Redding, Conn., April 23.—The little village of Redding was in mourning today for its benefactor and friend, Mark Twain, and this morning when the body was taken from the station to be placed on the train for New York, all business was suspended, and the villagers and farmers from the surrounding hills assembled to pay their last tributes. All day yesterday the villagers passed by the house, and parties in automobiles from neighboring cities drove up the river road, and stopping looked over the lowland to Stormfield, on the hill. Late yesterday the body was prepared for burial. Dressed in the white flannels, which he so constantly wore in the latter years of his life, it was placed in a plain mahogany coffin.

Many messages of comfort were received by Mrs. Ossip Gabrilowitch, Mark Twain's only living daughter. Among them was a telegram from President Taft, and a cablegram from former President Roosevelt. A message was also received from the authorities of Hannibal, Mo., asking that Mr. Clemens' body be brought there for burial. Mrs. Gabrilowitch replied that as the family burial ground was in Elmira, N. Y., it was thought best that the body be taken there.

The body was taken to the West Reading station at 10 o'clock this morning and placed on board the Pittsfield express. It was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Gabrilowitch, Albert Bigelow Paine and servants who have been in Mr. Clemens' service for many years. On the arrival of the body in New York, it will be taken to the Old Brick Presbyterian Church, where services will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. Henry Vandyke, assisted by the Rev. Joseph H. Twitchell, of Hartford, a lifelong friend of Mr. Clemens. After these services the body will be taken to Elmira, N. Y., in the private car of S. E. Lomis, vice-president of the Lackawanna Railroad.

BOYHOOD CHURNS MEMORY

Hannibal, Mo., April 23.—The news of the death of Samuel L. Clemens was received with profound sorrow in Hannibal, his boyhood home. Many of the characters in his earlier books are still living here. All business places and city offices were closed today and memorial services were held at the same hour as the services in the east. A movement has been started to have the Clemens "boyhood home" purchased by the state, and State Senator McAllister said that a bill to this effect would be introduced in the next legislature.

GERMANY GRIEVES

Berlin, April 23.—Extended appreciations of Mark Twain appear in yesterday's journals. The Lokal Anzeiger says: "Not only English-speaking people, but the whole world of culture grieves that he has gone."

A LIBRARY HIS MONUMENT

Redding, Conn., April 23.—The free public library which the literary colony here is building, will start as a permanent monument to the town's most distinguished citizen. The building is to be known as the "Mark Twain Memorial Library."

One of Mr. Clemens' last acts was to draw a check for $6,000, as his contribution to the building fund. Dan Beard, Ida Turbell, Josephine Gilder and Dr. W. C. Deming, whose wife is a great-granddaughter of Nathaniel Hawthorne, have raised $7,000 more and work of erecting a building is to begin at once.

Besides his financial assistance Mr. Clemens gave a great part of his private library to the institution.

A few hours before his death Mr. Clemens conversed at some length with his literary executor, Albert Bigelow Paine, regarding his manuscripts. There is a large amount of unpublished work, besides his autobiography, which is a collection of incidents and short stories of his life.

According to Mr. Paine there are many short stories, several longer works, and all the odds and ends of a lifetime of literary activity. There are stories which Mark Twain began and cut short, either from fatigue or lack of interest. Then there are others which he finished but discarded because he thought them unfit. Mrs. Ossip Gabrilowitch, his daughter, will retain Stormfield as a home, and will live here, at least during the summer months.

TRIBUTES TO MARK TWAIN

New York, April 23.—A cable message from Rudyard Kipling on the death of Mark Twain printed in the World today says:

"In Mr. Clemens' death all our English speaking world loses a great sage and humorist."

London, April 23.—In their editorial on Mark Twain today, the English press dwells as much on the nobility of his mind and character as on his pre-eminent qualities as a writer and humorist.

The Daily News remarks that it was only during the last decade that the business of his personality was fully revealed.

The Saturday Review says he was irretrievably comic but not a humorist.

The Spectator, on the other hand says the world loses not only an original humorist, but also a great humanist, who never wrote a line that he had cause to be ashamed of.

Many of the newspapers conceded that he was the most typical American man of letters, and the embodiment of American temperament, more so even than Hawthorne or Poe.

187 Men Missing

The Aurora, one of the staunchest and oldest of the Newfoundland sealing fleet, is reported missing since April 1st. She carried a crew of 187 men. The Aurora is a steamer of 540 tons gross, 386 tons net, and was built at Glasgow to the order of C. T. Bowring & Co., Liverpool, and has prosecuted the sealing industry out of Newfoundland since 1876 and has one of the most successful records of the entire fleet. Since April 1st several of the other ships prosecuting the voyage in the North Atlantic have picked up seals which had been panicked and flagged by the Aurora's crew, and many seals bearing the Aurora's brand have washed ashore on the Newfoundland coast. As most of the steamers are reported well fitted and quite a number have returned with full loads, it is thought that if the Aurora went down she carried with her a valuable cargo as well as the greatest loss of life in the history of the industry. Relatives and friends of the crew will entertain slight hopes that the ship is still afloat and only delayed through some breakdown to her engines.

BOWSER FOR WOMAN

Suddenly Becomes a Champion
For the Cause of Suffrage.

DECLARES HIS SEX TYRANTS

Receives No Encouragement From
Mrs. Bowser-Hustle For Converts
Among Constituents Results In Bringing Down Derision and Levity.

By M. QUAD.

(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

MRS. BOWSER came home with the light of battle in his eyes and his jaw set.Mrs. Bowser noticed it as he entered the hall, and her heart was as hard, but after a moment she forced a smile and led the way to the parlor.That something had happened or was going to happen was as sure as that the South American republics have got to sit up and behave them-selves, but she was polite enough to pretend not to notice. She began to tell about an old woman fainting away on the street and a boy breaking a window and promptly queried:

"Any fresh news from Nicaragua?"

"Elmhu?" was the reply.

"And do you think the English electors understand what they want?"

"Um!"

"I see by the report of the secretary of agriculture that the corn crop of the country for 1910 is over 10,000,000 bushels. Isn't that a tremendous yield?"

"Elmhu?"

"Do you think any of the senators will oppose Mr. Taft's general policy?""I shall have something to say to you later on," replied Mr. Bowser in outrageous tones.Mrs. Bowser was squelched. She was in for a dressing down because she hadn't fed the tramps, because that old woman had fainted away, be-cause the gas laws called for 40 cents more than last month, because she knew not what. The cook gave her a look of sympathy as she brought on the dinner, but that didn't brace her up much. Half an hour later, when she was alone, she remembered that she had not fed the tramps, and she make one objection? Have you once tried to speak an encouraging word to those noble men making the grand struggle for equal rights?""As I said, I haven't given the matter much thought.""And why? Answer me, why? If you had a soft corner on a low fellow I'll give it all your thought. If you want a pair of stockings mended down from the waist to the foot by right on the inside. All around you woman is making a fight for her life and yet not one encouraging word from you."You sit here with your nose stuck in a novel and feel that all the rest of your sex can go to pot. Woman, I shame you—of you—thoroughly shame-

you."

"And so you are going to make a campaign out of yourself?" and Mrs.
Bowser, as he walked to and fro."What? What? Mrs. Bowser, be a little careful! The sacred cause of woman's rights has gone beyond a laughing matter, and neither is it a subject for mirth."

Lecture Platform In View.

"What you take the lecture platform for?"

"May I may lecture and write and argue. If necessary I may take up arms. Yes, it may even come to that. I tell you, woman, there is the greatest upheaval going on in the world ever known. You have done nothing to help bring it about. You are still doing nothing. No matter that the blood of shame mingles your cheek. When my fellow suffragettes ask me where you stand what shall I say to them—what shall I say?""You can say that I have got work enough at home to keep me busy. You can say that I want a new pair of shoes, underwear, gloves, handkerchiefs
and a new hat, and shall I get them I'm not going to bother for the ballot."I'd look like walking up to the polls with holes in the heels of my stockings, wouldn't I?"

"Don't think to beg this question of me, Mrs. Bowser, and don't think to discourage me or make me withdraw my championship. I shall go right along without you. I shall not ask this very evening and make concessions. I shall go at once.""You had better stay at home and read the paper. If you will I'll have the cook make you a cake.""Fudge! Fudge! First street! But while millions of her sex are sitting the dust she talks about fudge!"

A Rustle For Converts.

Mr. Bowser put on his overcoat and hat and left the house. He believed the butcher would make a good con-vert, and he dropped in on him to say:
"Sullivan, what do you think of the question of woman's rights?""I'm stalling some talk just now and have to go to the bank."The butcher—just a few minutes later, and Mr. Bowser went over and asked:"Hopkins, the time has come when women should have the right to vote.""Are you around blowing off steam on that matter? Better save your wind for the morning when you'll have to come along."

"Then you are a tyrant?"

"And you are an ass!"

Mr. Bowser went over to the corner store. He felt sure of a convert there."Williams," he began, "I think I shall hire a ball and make an address to the subject of woman's rights."

"Don't, Bowser."

"But why not?"

"Because you'll kill the whole thing dead!" said the devil before you have said ten words! Here's a ball and talk about April!"Mr. Bowser tried the grocer and the cobbler, and he was a failure, and then went home. As he walked quietly into the sitting room Mrs. Bowser asked:"Why, how many converts did you make?"

"What are you talking about?"

"Why, woman's rights."

"Haven't heard a thing about it and don't want to. It's about time we went to bed unless you want to sit up all night and talk nonsense."

Next.

"He is a modern Samson."

"What—that little sandy legged fellow?"

"Yes."

"You'll have to show me."

"Wait until he removes his hat."

"What will that prove?"

"That his wife cuts his hair."—Hos-

SMALL FORTUNES IN TREES.

Hints to Farmers Who Are Prone to Cut Up Fine Logs and Stumps.Today there are comparatively few planer farms which must be cleared out of the forest, but there are many of which still possess enough timber to fuel cutting and for commercial use on a limited scale. In the light of re-cent warnings as to the menace of a scarcity of timber in the future, farmers are need not be admonished to avoid useless waste of trees. The average farmer does most of his tree cutting in the winter when he has time to do it.
